Ready At Five's School Readiness Symposia feature national researchers who share their research and curricula and offer concrete strategies designed to elevate the dialogue around the importance of early care and education. Early childhood practitioners, elementary school staff, community service providers, legislators, advocates, home visitors, the business community and public library personnel learn about the latest scientifically based research on young children and apply it to their programs and the children and families they serve. For more information, visit www.readyatfive.org or call 410/788-5725.
